HCC gives alumni awards, Krebs named to HCC Sports Hall of Fame

By Susie A. Wolfe

Phyllis Rhodes Krebs was inducted into the Hinds Community College (HCC) Sports Hall of Fame on October 29. From the Shiloh community of Pelahatchie, she played high school basketball at East Rankin Academy (ERA), and then at HCC, 1981-1983, where she was the first female to receive the Eagle Award for Most Outstanding Athlete in any sport. She was also voted Most Valuable Player and All-State.

The 1981 ERA valedictorian, Krebs played basketball at ERA under her father, Coach Billy Rhodes, from the ninth to twelfth grades. She was named an All-State basketball player.

"I am honored and most humbled by this award," said Krebs, a University of Southern Mississippi graduate who has taught high school math for 34 years. She first taught at Brandon High School, where she retired in 2015, and is currently teaching at Hartfield Academy.

Other Sports Hall of Fame inductees included Mike Burch, of Mobile, Ala., football, 1986-1987; Jeffrey Fields, of Baton Rouge, La., football, 1986-1987; Dwayne Green, of Fayetteville, Ga., soccer, 1984-1987; and Jeff Long, of Meadville, baseball, 1987-1989.

Non-sports award winners given by the Alumni Association and Hinds Community College Foundation include the two new awards Foundation/ Alumni Hall of Fame and the Young Alumnus of the Year.

President Emeritus Dr. Clyde Muse of Raymond received the inaugural Foundation Alumni Hall of Fame Award recognizing someone who has demonstrated over an extended period of time genuine interest and support of Hinds Community College. It's the highest honor presented by the Foundation and Alumni Association.

and defensive line, the power lifting team, and the golf team.

According to PHS teachers, "Many of his students say that they truly understand math for the first time; he makes learning relevant and interactive - helping them understand difficult concepts. He consistently and proudly posts student work in the hallway for others to see the amazing things he is doing inside his classroom. This year, Coach Walters was forced to embrace technology in new and innovative ways. Almost daily, he excitedly shares 'new-found' interactive tools and websites with his colleagues."

Beyond the classroom, Coach Walters is constantly "coaching up" kids – from behavior and academics to football and powerlifting and everything in between. In addition to coaching both offensive and defensive lines in football, he coordinates team meals and trip tickets. He and his family routinely provide goody bags for football players and the cheer team.

Handwritten notes of encouragement from Coach Tyler Walters can be found all around campus – written to students, teachers, administrators, and even other coaches. However, these notes and cards cannot come close to matching the amount of verbal affirmations and encouragements from Coach Walters.

PHS expressed thanks to their sponsors, Fairway Foods and Country Boys for their sponsorship of the Teacher of the Year Award. Fairway Foods is honoring Coach Walters with a steak dinner, and Country Boys provided an Igloo drink cooler.

Legislative Update: Federal COVID-19 relief dollars

Special to

By Guest Columnist Miss. Representative Tom Miles

The first week in October, the legislature returned to reallocate federal COVID-19 relief dollars to ensure that they're spent efficiently before the end of the year (at which point unspent funds are returned to the federal government). Using the over $1 billion in federal aid we've received to-date, we have passed $300 million in grants for Mississippi's small businesses, made historic investments in education, distance learning, and wireless connectivity across the state, and provided assistance to veterans' homes, farmers, hospitals, and more.

Here's a list of the things we worked on in the final meetings of the session dealing with finalizing the CARES Act funds:

- COVID Vaccine SB3056 is known as the Uniformed Control Substance. This will allow for COVID vaccines to be prescribed to people when a vaccine is made available.
- First Responders $10 million to help with needed improvements to our Mississippi Wireless Network State Radio system for our first responders across the State.
- Poultry Farmers $10 million for farmers including $3 million specifically for poultry and $500,000 for sweet potato farmers. Farmers will need to show they have suffered losses from the pandemic.
- Veterans $10 million for state veterans' homes, which have been hard-hit by coronavirus cases. The money will largely go toward personal protective equipment and additional nurses.

- Hospitals $10 million for hospitals to beef up their number of ICU beds, isolation rooms and negative pressure rooms, as they prepare for another surge of virus cases. The Department of Health will administer the program and determine which facilities receive funding
- Loss of Rent $20 million for loss of rent to property owners. Under the bill, landlords can get up to $30,000 to cover losses they received after they were unable to evict renters who stopped paying during the pandemic. An amendment to the bill says commercial landlords can receive no more than 25% out of the $20 million total relief.

Money was also set aside to help with pandemic expenses reimbursement for businesses like photographers and others left out of the Back to Business plan, farmers, volunteer fire departments non profits & food pantries. • Education Funding - SB3057 clears up where our schools can pre pay for hot spots ahead of time for our students that was passed earlier in the year.

And with that, the 2020 legislative session has finally come to an end-about five months later than anticipated. This was a historic session in so many ways, and it has been an incredible privilege to represent the people of Scott and Rankin Counties in Jackson!

We will be returning to the Capitol in just three months for the 2021 session, and it's sure to be another challenging year as we continue dealing with the fallout of the COVID-19 pandemic. I'm already ready to get to back to work-there is much to be done!

RC team attends October Commission on Children's Justice presentations

Special to Pelahatchie News

The Mississippi Commission on Children's Justice attended presentations by Chan Hellman, Ph.D. on October 20, 21 and 22 in Jackson at the Gartin Justice Building and the Department of Child Protection Services. Katrina Phillips represented Rankin County Youth Court at the presentations.

Dr. Hellman, of Tulsa, Oklahoma, is a professor of social work at the University of Oklahoma and Director of The Hope Research Center. His research is focused on hope as a psychological strength helping children and adults overcome trauma and adversity. He is the co- author of the book Hope Rising: How the Science of Hope Can Change Your Life.

"Our overall goal is to create a culture of hope that is grounded in evidence-based practices," Hellman told the cochairs of the Commission on Children's Justice and the HOPE training development committee in a virtual meeting on October 8.

"When you expose people to the awareness of trauma and adversity, the question is what do we do about it. The answer is hope," Hellman said. "Individuals who are in crisis, who have a history of trauma, tend to set goals of avoidance. Higher hope individuals set achievement goals."

Commission on Children's Justice Co-Chair Justice Dawn Beam said, "We are excited to welcome Hope Rising author Dr. Hellman to Mississippi. He will challenge all of us to think outside the box on how to help struggling families in our state. My prayer is that he helps all of us to see hope: hope for our state leaders to see a way to improve services to our families, hope to service providers that have been workers in the trenches for years, but especially hope to our families and children to see their way out of poverty, helplessness and despair."

Taylor Cheeseman, Interim Commissioner of the Mississippi Department of Child Protection Services, said, "Ensuring child and family wellbeing is the ultimate goal for all who serve in Mississippi's child welfare system. And I believe Dr. Hellman's research and training on hope will be an effective tool for fostering the resilience families who have experienced significant trauma need to move towards a state of long-term wellbeing."

The Commission on Children's Justice recently established Programs of HOPE to continue to address child neglect prevention. Five multi-disciplinary committees were established to identify and recommend actions which can fill gaps, strengthen opportunities and lift up Mississippi families to a place where they can see a path toward better lives.

Programs of HOPE committees include Housing and Transportation; Opportunities for Treatment; Parent, Child and Family Supports; Economic Security; and Pathways of HOPE.

The Mississippi Supreme Court created the Commission on Children's Justice in 2006 and tasked it to develop a statewide, comprehensive approach to improving the child welfare system; coordinate the three branches of government; and recommend changes to improve children's safety, strengthen and support families, and promote public trust and confidence in the child welfare system.

Hope is more than a wish, and giving hope can make a difference in the lives of abused and neglected children and their families, says an Oklahoma psychologist who met with Mississippi officials

Dr. Hellman is scheduled to present a series of hope-centered lectures to judges, court staff and Department of Child Protection Services social workers during three regional trainings on April 13, 14, and 15, 2021, in Oxford, Madison and Gulfport as part of the Court Improvement Program.

Providing hope is part of the work of those charged with ensuring the well-being of children and families. Hope is a pathway to helping people find employment and find solutions to problems, such as acquiring transportation to reach jobs or gain access to services. People need hope that there is a way out of their circumstances.

Pelahatchie Elementary, the best kept secret in Rankin County

Special to

By Guest Columnist, Robin Sanders, Principal, Pelahatchie Elementary

The start of this school year was certainly different from years past, but Pelahatchie

Elementary staff, students, and parents have helped to make this the best start possible! With many new faces in administration, faculty and staff, and students, we have spent time getting to know each other and establish friendships that will last a lifetime.

Each month, we will honor our "Chiefs with Character." This is an opportunity to recognize students for displaying positive character. For August and September, we recognized students who exhibited resilience and friendship. Our Pelahatchie family has consistently demonstrated an enormous amount of resiliency and friendliness, and everyone is determined to make this year a success!

We are also very proud of our virtual learning Chiefs and are recognizing their efforts each month. It has been nothing short of amazing to observe classroom instruction as teachers seamlessly include their virtual learners into the physical class lessons and discussions.

Another endeavor we are focused on this school year is to increase parent contact to celebrate our students. Our teachers and bus drivers continuously communicate with the administration team about students who are demonstrating excellence and/or improvement at school and on the bus. It is the goal of the administration team to communicate with parents through phone or notes to let parents know that we are so proud of their child. In getting started with this new practice, we are just as proud to call and write parents and brag on their child as parents are to receive the communication. We can't wait to brag on your student next!

We are excited to see what lies ahead for Pelahatchie Elementary, the best kept secret in Rankin County. We are Pelahatchie Strong. Go Chiefs!

Looking back, our return to school from the 2019 Christmas Holidays was quite a comical one. I could not wait to address you all with what at the time seemed like such a hopeful message for the upcoming year. "2020 Vision" was the message (I still give credit to Mr. Bryan Collins for coining the phrase first) and it didn't take long to see that message become a worthy one for so many to start the year. What a solid message it was!

In retrospect, imagine the irony of "2020 Vision." As we transitioned into the new year, clarity for the Spring semester was present. We felt great about the direction we were heading as well as how well our students were following through with the expectations that were laid out. We wrapped up the third nine weeks with a faculty/student basketball game on the Friday before spring break with high hopes for what the fourth nine weeks would bring. From that point forward, the COVID-19 pandemic entered the picture and "2020 Vision" ceased to exist, and in many ways, clarity has been what we've all longed for ever since. How ironic!

While this lack of clarity has dominated so many areas of our profession, what is clear is your absolute devotion to this profession. These past few months have revealed so much about the faculty and staff of Pelahatchie High School. Your willingness to uproot decades old classroom habits and embrace what we thought would be impossible have been nothing short of astonishing. You have found ways to "problem solve" when there really wasn't an answer for what at the time was unknown. Through troubleshooting, trial and error, and most importantly, collaboration with each other, you have not only survived some of the toughest educational terrain imaginable, in my honest opinion, you have thrived. And so, because of your efforts, clarity is revealing itself once again.

While all I have to provide are words, they are simply not enough to say how much I appreciate these efforts. Our "Tribe" is a phenomenal one. I am so thankful to be able to walk the halls on a daily basis and greet educators from very different backgrounds that truly enjoy their peers and the young adults they teach. Pelahatchie High School is quite fortunate to have teachers who are masterful at integrating healthy relationships with their students while pushing them to appropriate academic limits. Pelahatchie High School couldn't have a more superb collection of educators to face the obstacles that exist in today's classroom. Pelahatchie High School is fortunate to have such a dedicated teachers and staff!

Merit Health Woman's Hospital now offering FDA-approved automated breast ultrasound system for screening

Special to Pelahatchie News

Merit Health Woman's Hospital announced in September that they are on the forefront of breast care by now offering the InveniaTM ABUS 2.0 (Automated Breast Ultrasound System), approved by the FDA for breast cancer screening as an adjunct to mammography for women with dense breast tissue.

"We are excited to add the Automated Breast Ultrasound system to our comprehensive breast cancer screening program. By offering ABUS in addition to mammography for our patients with dense breast tissue, we anticipate improving detection for small cancers that cannot be seen on a mammogram alone in these women. We believe ABUS will become an integral part of our practice for the detection of breast cancer," said Bryan Lantrip, MD, Radiologist at Merit Health.

Dense breast tissue has been found to be the most common risk factor for the development of cancer (Engmann, et al., JAMA, February 2017) and also makes cancer more difficult to detect using mammography, according to multiple large studies. As breast density goes up, the accuracy of mammograms goes down (Kolb et al Radiology, October 2002). The difficulty radiologists experience when reading mammograms is that both dense tissue and cancer appear white on a mammogram. With ABUS, suspicious masses appear black against the white dense tissue.

In early 2019, a national density inform law was passed that mandates that the FDA update mammography reporting so that women be notified if their breasts are dense. Providers may offer supplemental imaging as appropriate to help find cancers hiding in dense breast tissue.

"Mammography is the gold standard for the detection of breast cancer; however, it doesn't work equally well in all women, particularly those with dense breast tissue," added Edgar Barham,

Special to Pelahatchie News

MD, Radiologist at Merit Health. "Designed and built specifically for screening, research shows that ABUS technology as an adjunct to mammography has the potential to find 35.7 percent additional cancers that would not have been found with mammography alone," said Dr. Barham.

The Invenia ABUS 2.0 system is FDA-approved for breast cancer screening in the United States as an adjunct to mammography for women with dense breast tissue. The Invenia ABUS 2.0 system is designed to enhance the consistency, reproducibility, and sensitivity of breast ultrasound, demonstrating a 35.7 percent improvement in cancer detection (sensitivity) in women with dense breasts without prior breast intervention. (FDA PMA Approval P110006, Sept. 18, 2012.)

The unique challenges of breast cancer screening led to important technology innovations that result high resolution images that can be acquired rapidly. Clinically, this offers an efficient option that provides enhanced resolution and contrast, making the Invenia ABUS 2.0 system well positioned to address the workflow challenges of breast cancer screening and improve the detection of breast cancer, in women with dense breasts.

Drs. Lantrip & Barham recommend that women get regular mammograms as suggested by their doctor, and if they have been informed that they have dense breast tissue, they should talk to their doctor or radiologist about their specific risk and additional screening tests that might be appropriate.

For further information about Invenia ABUS 2.0, visit www.merithealthwomanshospital.com/automated-breast-ultrasound.

Pastor's Perspective: He has blessed us through the difficulties

By Guest Columnist John Vaughn, Pastor, Cross Roads Baptist Church

Special to And

It's official! 2020 has been a strange year! And it's not over yet. During the year, we have faced the COVID Crisis, hurricanes, wildfires, flooding, riots, killer hornets, and probably other issues that I can't think of right now. In addition, as you read this, we will have concluded a very contentious election year. Whatever the outcome of the Presidential race, about fifty percent of the population will not be happy with the results. On top of all this, every individual has had your own personal struggles and difficulties to deal with. Yes, 2020 has been a strange and challenging year.

When the COVID Crisis hit in March, we all had to shift gears and do things we had never done before. Churches, schools and many businesses closed their doors. Online activities increased and became the norm overnight. We all quickly learned what "Zoom" was. And although things are not now, and perhaps never will be back to what "normal" was before the crisis, at least most churches, schools and businesses have been able to resume activities.

Some people tend to ask things like, "So where has God been through all of this? Why did He let it all happen? Why didn't He stop it? What is He doing now?"

The answer is that God is right where He has always been. He is still sovereign and ultimately, He will prove vicworship You, I worship You. You are here, working in this place, I worship You, I worship You. Waymaker, miracle worker, promise keeper, light in the darkness; My God, that is who You are...Even when I don't see it, You're working, Even when I can't feel it, You're working; You never stop, You torious over all things that we face.

At our church, we sing the song "Way Maker," which was written by and first recorded by the Nigerian Gospel singer, Sinach, in 2015. It has since been translated into over 50 languages and has been recorded by a number of different artists in the United States. Part of the lyrics of "Way Maker" say, "You are here, moving in our midst, I never stop working, You never stop, You never stop working...Waymaker, miracle worker, promise keeper, light in the darkness, My God, that is who You are."

The song is correct. Our God is a promise keeper and a miracle worker. And He never stops working, even when we can't see Him or feel Him. So even with all of the difficulties we have faced in 2020, we have a God who is faithful to us and will continue to work on our behalf and for our good.

Even with the problems and challenges we have encountered this year, we all know that we have also been blessed in so many ways and should do as the old hymn says and "Count our Blessings."

November is the month we celebrate Thanksgiving. It is a time for us to count our blessings and remember all the things we should be thankful for. And we should remember to give thanks to the Lord for all of those blessings we enjoy. And that's what I would like to challenge you to do this month, to be thankful!

Find a notebook or just a sheet of paper, and every day, write down at least one thing you are thankful for, or some way that God has blessed your life. You may think of several things each day, but be sure to write them all down. On Thanksgiving Day, read back over your list and be reminded of all of the things you have to be thankful for.

Year 2020 has been a difficult year, but because we know a faithful God, He has blessed us in spite of, and sometimes through, the difficulties. Be thankful for Him and to Him. And be sure to take your family to church on Sunday.

Buddy Walk veterans come back through Pelahatchie

By Susie A. Wolfe

The Buddy Watch Walk group came back through Pelahatchie to draw attention to veteran issues like suicide and PTSD. They have 601 more miles and plan to arrive back in Savannah by December 3

John Ring and fellow veterans continued their walk east after spending the night as guests of Yogi on the Lake on October 4. Pelahatchie natives James Till, commander of the Mississippi American Legion, and Wayne Hanson, head of American Legion Post 171 in Pelahatchie, assisted the group while they were in Town, and Alderman Eddie Jones came to say hello.

To donate to this veteran's group, go to buddywatchwalk.com.

America's tech giants are not the problem, and an antitrust lawsuit is not the solution

By Chip Pickering

America's tech glants are not the problem, and antitrust is not the solution. As we enter into a new age of competition and shally with China on strategic, on national security, on economic grounds, we have a lot of people in Washington who are wanting to now either break up or heavily regulate the internet companies just at the wrong time and in the wrong way. As you look at every measurement of consumer welfare – lower prices, more innovation, greater investment across all parts of the economy – American tech companies are creating greater growth, lower prices, better services – and that's a halfmark of a very competitive market and not a concentrated monopolistic market.

Ask yourself, is it not the American way to encourage innovation with our brightest minds? Do we want to stiffe our ideas and productivity, which is what I would argue is the very thing that has put us on top. Fourteen of the world's top twenty tech companies are American; we are in a new age of competition and rivalry with Chins. The U.S. tech industry's global market position is at risk and has huge ramifications for re-starting the American economy and our long-term prospects. It's clear the American technology and e-commerce sector drives U.S. growth. States are aggressively competing on a daily basis for good technology jobs. Our universities and colleges are investing in more and more technology and public-private partnerships. Law-suits will definitely damage our fastest growing industry and threaten these American lobs.

With a global pendernic threatening the entire world, again ask yourself where would we have been over the last six months without technology to assist our businesses to continue to operate, to educate our children with distance learning, and to provide much needed health care by the use of telehealth? In a recent nationwide survey by the Connected Commerce Council, 93% of small businesses reported they were disrupted by COVID-19 and nearly three in four increased their use of digital tools with COVID-19. A majority of small businesses found digital tools more helpful during COVID-19 then before it. Most also plan to continue to use more digital tools after the pandemic.

By attacking U.S. companies like Arrazon, Apple, Fecebook and Google, the Justice Department, members of Congress, and some state attorneys general have taken a step back in time and are forgetting the hard work that has been done on the issue of antitrust. Companies being too large or successful is not a violation of antitrust laws. Antitrust was established to focus on the consumer and there is a robust consumer welfare standard in our antitrust laws now. Plus, many of the technology companies that are currently being attacked provide free services to our families, services that we use every day in our lives. Comments have been made about political bias within our technology companies from both sides of the able. There are solutions to political bias, but mistakenly using antitrust is not the right way to encourage free speech.

Politicizing antitrust by attacking our technology companies and filing federal and state antitrust lawsuits are not the way to go for our country's future. Lawsuits are a distraction from real issues that need to be addressed and a waste of taxpayers' money. Solutions are out there; decision makers and our technology companies can find them together. Lawsuits will only cause delay distraction and economic losses. Our technology jobs and our future are at state.

Pickering currently serves as CEO of INCOMPAS.

Town improving Wastewater Treatment

Special to Pelahatchie News

By Guest Columnist Ryshonda Beechem, Mayor of Pelahatchie

The Town worked on our Wastewater Treatment Facilities Improvement. I met with Waggoner Engineers over the course of weeks to submit necessary documents to MDEQ. We submitted:

- 1. Financing Statement
- 2. Memorandum of Loan Agreement
- 3. GAAP Certification
- 4. Fiscal Sustainability Plan Certification
- 5. Loan Application
- 6. The minutes from March 2, 2020 board meeting authorizing the submission of application

The Town moved to advertise for professional services during the October 5 board meeting. The plan is to utilize USDA funds for professional services; however, the Town wants to follow all MDEQ procedures.

The Town is working on procuring professional services and will ensure the items requested are submitted as soon as contracts are in place. The USDA application, Preliminary Engineering Report, and Environmental Report have been completed. The only remaining task is submitting an audit so the USDA application can move forward. The audit is underway and should allow for funds to be secured per the proposed schedule; however, not having all the tools and/or competent people to meet the task could potentially not only slow the town's progress but could cause the town to receive tremendous fines.

PBC hosts Holiday Market Place | Johns named RCSD Secondary Employee
